The application should be reviewed for errors.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-7 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1 is vague and indefinite in the recitation of “in combination”. The intended meaning of “combination” in this context is unclear, since it is apparent from claim 2 that lecithin is administered in two 1200 mg tablets; from claim 3 that niacin is provided as two 500 mg soft gels and from claim 5 that fish oil is present in the form of two 1250 mg soft gels. Are all of these preparations swallowed simultaneously? If they are not, but rather staggered, the term “combination” appears improper and inappropriate.

Claim 7 is vague and indefinite in the recitation “at least six to seven weeks”. The term “at least” generally pertains to no upper limit. Thus it is uncertain which the lower and upper limit of the range is intended to be. Is it a range from 6 to 7 weeks?

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Seed et al. taken with Hoie, Kirschman et al. and Yegorova.

Art Unit: 1651

Seed et al. teaches the treatment of excessive blood lipid levels in humans comprising the daily administration of fish oil concentrate and niacin in combination (See, e.g., col. 9, lines 40-45).

The reference differs from the claimed invention in that the presence of lecithin in the combination is not acknowledged. However, Hoie teach the administration of a soybean preparation in combination with fish oil concentrates and nicotinic acid derivatives. (See, e.g., col. 22, lines 47 et seq.) In addition, Kirschman et al. disclose that lecithin is required to break down cholesterol and fats in the blood. The use of inositol hexanicotinate as a suitable nicotinic acid derivative is known in the art as demonstrated by Yegorova (See, e.g., col. 6, lines 36-43).

The optimization of conditions identified as result-effective variables cited in the references, such as dosage and form of administration would have been prima facie obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the claimed invention was made to administer the instant ingredients in combination for their known benefit since each is well known in the art for their claimed purpose and for the following reasons. This rejection is based on the well established proposition of patent law that no invention resides in combining old ingredients of known properties where the results obtained thereby are no more than the additive effect of the ingredients, In re Sussman, 1943 C.D. 518. Applicants invention is predicated on an unexpected result highly dependent upon specific proportions and/or amounts of particular ingredients. Any mixture of the components embraced by the claims which does not exhibit an unexpected result is therefore ipso facto unpatentable.

Accordingly, the instant claims, in the range of proportions where no unexpected results are observed, would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill having the above cited references before him.

From the teachings of the references, it is apparent that one of ordinary skill in the art would have had a reasonable expectation of success in producing the claimed invention. Therefore, the invention as a whole was prima facie obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, as evidenced by the references, especially in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

No claim is allowed.
